

A few exciting bits of news from 2A.....

- We are very thrilled to be planning and preparing for the All Saints Day Mass (more information in the next update)! Every day we try to grow in our faith and always remember others in special prayers.
- For our Hispanic Heritage Celebration projects, we combined Religion and Social Studies as we learned about a priest who started several missions in California. We then worked with partners to create replicas of some of those missions.
- Continuing to develop our writing skills is a major goal, and we realize that along with creative ideas, learning the rules of grammar is a must for good writers. We'll let you know more about our latest writing project in the next update. We're also trying different genres and some new authors as we try to expand our reading skills.
- Who said studying matter isn't exciting? We conducted a very neat experiment in which we discovered that air does have mass!
- Concentrating on map skills and finding out about groups and various kinds of communities have been important topics in Social Studies.
- We've reviewed basic addition and subtraction in Math (along with other topics), and now we're ready to tackle two digit addition and subtraction.

Go Cardinals!!!
