

Jane Wilkinson

Professional Bio

Jane Wilkinson believes that St. Charles strives for academic excellence in a fun-filled, caring environment. Although new to St. Charles, since 2007, Mrs. Wilkinson is beginning her 11th year of teaching. Other employment experiences have included corporate marketing for a large transportation company; real estate management; and administrative responsibilities at the Air Force Research Laboratory. She has a BA in Education and belongs to the NCEA. Her future plans include finishing her Master's degree.

Educational Philosophy

Mrs. Wilkinson believes that teachers, in partnership with parents, administrators, and the community, are responsible for preparing children academically, socially, and spiritually to become independent and contributing future adults. Teachers need to assess children in the present moment, envision the future, and utilize intuitive and research-based teaching applications and strategies to maximize each child's potential growth. The well-being of the children comes first.
